

Idaho Domestic Violence Fact Sheet

What Is Domestic Violence

Domestic violence is a pattern of abusive behavior in any intimate relationship that is used by one partner to gain or maintain power and control over the other partner. Domestic violence can involve physical, sexual, emotional, economic, or psychological actions or threats of actions. Several types of abusive behaviors may occur together and can continue even after one partner has ended the relationship. Domestic violence disproportionately affects women, girls and individuals who are Trans or gender non-conforming. Domestic violence, like all forms of gender-based violence, is connected to the ways our systems devalue human beings based on identities, compounding the impact of domestic violence and creating additional harm against Black, Indigenous, Latinx, and other survivors of color, LGBTQ survivors, and survivors with disabilities or who are Deaf or hard of hearing.

Domestic Violence in Idaho

- In 2022, 20 of 24 (83%) domestic violence programs provided services in a 24 hour period to 615 survivors of domestic violence and their children seek safety and services from community and tribal domestic violence programs. Of the 615 survivors - 325 adult and child victims of domestic violence found refuge in emergency shelters, transitional housing, hotels, motels, or other housing provided by local domestic violence programs and 290 adult and child victims received non-residential supportive services related to legal needs, housing advocacy, transportation, mental health, public benefits, and more.
- In 2022, there were 10 domestic violence related fatalities in Idaho. As of September 2023, there have been 9 intimate partner related fatalities in Idaho.
- In 2022, law enforcement agencies in Idaho received reports of 5,940 incidents of intimate partner violence.¹ It is important to know that many survivors of domestic violence do not report to law enforcement for a wide range of reasons.
- Boise State University researchers recommend that Idaho's response to domestic violence can be improved by investing in community-based victim services, creating a phone or electronic process for the issuance of emergency civil protection orders, creating practices that directly connect survivors of domestic violence to local victim services, among other solutions.²

Idaho Risk Assessment of Dangerousness

While there is no way to predict an abusive partner's behavior, the following factors are warning signs of increased dangerousness in the relationship, with lethality factors in red:

1. History of Domestic Violence – current stalking behaviors, partner forced to have sexual contact, attempted strangulation, and acts of violence while victim pregnant
2. Prior police contact of offender
3. Threats to Kill Victim or Children by offender
4. Threats of Suicide by offender
5. Separation – recent separation
6. Coercive/Controlling Behavior – extreme possessiveness
7. Alcohol or Drug Abuse

Idaho Resources on Domestic Violence

Healing from Domestic Violence booklets for survivors are available in English, Spanish, Arabic and Swahili. Copies available at no cost on the Idaho Coalition website www.engagingvoices.org.

National Domestic Violence Hotline: 1 (800) 799-7233 / 1(800) 787-3224 (TTY)
Idaho Coalition Against Sexual & Domestic Violence www.engagingvoices.org

¹ Idaho, S. of. (2021, September 30). Crime in Idaho Data Dashboard. Planning, Grants, and Research. <https://isp.idaho.gov/pgr/sac/dashboards/crime-in-idaho-data-dashboard/>

² Bostaph, Jeffries, King, and Gillespie (2020). 2020 Biennial report on victimization & victim services in Idaho, Volume 1, Issue 1.